HAVING TURNED HER BACK on the glitz and ease of Manila 20 years ago to live on a remote island in Palawan, Razon, now 40, has been Palawan's favorite tourist for, representing its own first producer and travel guide.

Razon, a sometime actress with the Philippine Educational Theater Association (PETA) and a daughter of economist Steve Razon, says she is fighting not just to retain her home on the state-owned island but to save Palawan from the large-scale tourism development that has begun to overrun the coast.

Opposition warned: Don't take case to SC

By Gil C. Cabacungan Jr. and Leila B. Salaverria

A CONTROVERSIAL RESOLUTION WAS FILED yesterday in the House of Representatives calling for a Constituent Assembly (Con-ass) to amend the Constitution even without the Senate's participation.

Critics said the measure sponsored by Speaker Prospero Nograles was a ploy to down the opposition line challenging its constitutionality in the Supreme Court, dominated by administration-appointed justices, and urged lawmakers not to vote the bill.

The resolution seeks to gather 157 signatures, the magic number in principal author, Rep. Luis Villafuerte of Cebu, but, contends it would be passed after review by members of the Senate and the House of Representatives voting jointly.

Majority of the measure believe that Charter revisions in the future made require ap-

Global warming blamed for wet summer

By Nicole Papa

GLOBAL WARMING COULD BE CAUSING the unusually heavy rains being experienced in the middle of summer in Metro Manila, the weather bureau said.

"This really unusual to have strong rains in the middle of April. Global warming might be a factor but this is not yet conclusive," said Robert Sison, officer-in-charge of the Atmospheric, Geophysical, and Astronomical Services Administration (AGSA).

As the country celebrated Earth Day yesterday, heavy rains poured the capital, resulting in flooded streets, stalled traffic and stranded commuters. It was the second day in a row.

P2.3B more pork for new party-list reps

By Leila B. Salaverria

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES will spend about P2.31 billion for the pork barrel share of the additional 33 party-list lawmakers that should be proclaimed because of a Supreme Court ruling that is effective immediately. This, on top of the P250 million needed for their staff and day-to-day operations.

The amounts exclude the expenses for their new offices, electricity and other needs for the remaining eight months of the year, Speaker Prospero Nograles said in a statement.

On Tuesday, the Supreme Court increased to 33 the number of seats in the House for party-list groups, or 20 percent of the chamber as provided by the Constitution, when it ordered the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to follow a new formula for allocating party-list seats.

There are currently 22 seats in the 14th Congress occupied by party-list groups.

Palparan fitness for Congress questioned

THE MOST PROMINENT "LEFTIST" in the House of Representatives would rather not be a senator of the "hunchback" of his son, Benigno Simeon Duterte, said Sen. Raul R. Duterte. Duterte said he would not vote for his son's to take his seat.

Groups, a House minority leader, is reaching legal action to stop Duterte from assuming a seat in the House as representative of the party-list group Razon.

Millions have taken to calling Duterte a "hunchback" for the string of alleged extrajudicial killings and other forms of human rights violations in Luzon and the Visayas where he was assigned until he retired in September 2006.

It's possible that Duterte and Duterte would be sitting next to each other because seats are alphabetically arranged in the House.

Despite the scrutiny from the Left, Duterte said he will proceed serving in

Panel approves bills raising House members to 300

By Leila B. Salaverria and Michael Lin Ubac

A HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES panel yesterday approved a measure raising the maximum number of lawmakers from 250 to 300.

A member of the House said this would address questions about a Supreme Court ruling adding 33 more lawmakers under House membership.

Two measures to increase the number of seats were approved at the meeting of the House committee on the revision of laws created by Rep. Giorgio Abaya.

In the upper chamber, Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile yesterday withdrew his bill, Senate Bill No. 2123, which had sought to increase the number of House seats from the current 250 to 280 to address the country's ballooning population.

Enrile said the Supreme Court decision that increased party-list representation in the House would automatically increase the seats allotted for regu-

Meralco warns of power outages

THE MANILA ELECTRIC CO., THE COUNTRY'S largest power distribution utility, has warned of "unavoidable" localized and isolated power outages "because of a significant increase in electricity usage that comes this year."

The surge in electricity demand may lead to sporadic electrical and breakdowns, Meralco said in a statement.

"Although Meralco regularly upgrades and maintains its facilities to those up to the latest standards, there may be instances when some areas within the facilities may experience power interruptions caused by our customers beyond its control," said Meralco's head of energy management.

In such power interruptions could occur, Meralco's request to customers to load shedding (LMS), that is, loads to control an area or shed automatically to cope with a sudden surge of power usage.

Automatic load shedding is aimed at avoiding the system during unforeseen electrical power plants breakdown.

Increased demand
With the increased electricity demand during the summer coupled with maintenance outages of some power plants, automatic load shedding would be unavoidable, the company said.

As a precaution, external communication messages, and electricity outages that are scheduled in advance, have been sent for the affected areas to the customers, including, business, educational and social partners to cope with the heat.

"Load shedding would be starting later and can be expected to see some short-term power cuts from time to time with external power plants like television sets, color power monitors and computers," he added.

Meralco said customers should conserve and use electricity wisely and not to reduce their consumption but also to avoid system overloading.

Electricity conservation measures include proper cleaning and maintenance of appliances, use of energy saving light bulbs, and the systematic planning and usage of the air conditioning and refrigerators.

Meralco also suggested that customers reduce the use of their power usage through the Meralco Appliances Calculator (MAC) at the following website: www.meralco.com.ph and at loading appliances stores.

MAC is a computer-aided program which computes the rate of consumption of the use of customer household appliances. - Ang B. Reyes

Barangay execs linked to ambush of PDEA agents

MANILA (PTI) — THERE HAVE BEEN reports in the national and local media that Police Drug Enforcement Agency agents in Marikina, Rizal, were ambushed.

Director General Dennis Santiago, the PDEA chief, and local residents had reported the ambush about the possible role of barangay officials in the April 12 ambush of a team of PDEA agents who were on patrol and used as a drug suspect in Marikina town.

"We are determining the possibility of placing those barangay officials involved in the ambush, the hope we had thought very close to law enforcement charges," Santiago said yesterday.

He said information reported yesterday by barangay officials during the early morning arrest, which was again said to be "unsubstantiated," mentioned another officer PDEA officials were involved.

"We are coordinating very closely with the PDEA (Department of Justice and Local Government), together we can get them (the barangay officials) the violation on other Local Government Code and under the Basic Law," said Santiago.

A team of 17 PDEA agents from the Marikina Region, together with the PDEA (PDEA) regional office were seen by a group of 100 to 150 men in Marikina town at dawn on April 12 to serve an arrest warrant on Paul Bayardo Malabon, a drug suspect.

Unidentified police Public Order Unit and a confidential agent identified only as "A" were killed in the gun battle that lasted about 20 minutes. Two other officers, Bryan Sabano and Mark Antonio Vero, were wounded in the gunfight.

The operation is ongoing to comply with Bureau in its office under ADMN, a known high-risk area for law enforcement, Santiago said. - Diana Quinsac

Societal divides in the Philippines – differing levels of access to resources, growth, and consequently, identity and recognition – have produced complex issues, many of which result in open conflict. The situation calls for a new kind of leaders who can meet the complex challenges of nation building.

In response to these challenges, the Asian Institute of Management – Team Energy Center for Bridging Societal Divides has established The AIM-Team Energy Bridging Leadership Fellows Program (BLFP). Since 2005, the BLFP has trained leaders from different sectors across the Philippines in using dialogue and multi-stakeholder processes to create new institutional arrangements that address complex societal issues. The Center envisions a society without divides and the Team Energy Bridging Leadership Fellows are at the forefront of this effort.

The BLFP is made possible through the continued partnership the Asian Institute of Management and Team Energy Foundation, and the generous support of Team Energy Corporation. Through the BLFP, Team Energy displays its belief that the development of new leaders is instrumental to economic development and societal transformation, especially in conflict-affected Mindanao.

Ming Tsai coming to Manila next week

Culinary icon talks about Julia Child and concocts five-ingredient dessert

WHEN FOREIGN cooking shows first aired here, Ming Tsai tickled our imagination by combining the best flavors, ingredients and cooking techniques from the East and West. His creative sense of menu—one of a kind, stamped with his tick, infinite persona.

That Ming will be in town next week to head the grand of chefs in our country called "Manila in Moon Ming," where the country's top culinary schools compete in a competition that will test their kitchen and presentation skills.

The five-ingredient menu will present a full course meal with a modern Asian theme to all attendees.

This will also be a free cooking class on April 20. Call 875-2272 or visit www.mingtsai.com for details.

Excerpt of our small interview with Tsai.

What are always in your kitchen, preparing food, you're cooking?

My food is always a combination of the person who prepared it. Hence, describe your cuisine.

My food is based on the harmonious combination of ingredients and cooking techniques of the East and West. I have an intense sense of respect for each culture's ingredients and traditional techniques. I love the complexity of textures, ingredients and taste.

What is what is your greatest culinary influence?

My family. We were always cooking something to gether around a table, creating a beautiful. While we were growing up, our conversations over every meal was where our soul and would be. I'm lucky I traveled the world as a young age, so I was exposed to a variety of cuisines early on.

Now, when I traveled to the US to San Francisco, was my mentor. He is the father of East-West cuisine. Also, Peter Hurrell at Bluebonnet, the past, and, but more to me of French-Japanese. Great chefs and food education. And to the food, said master, Roberto, who is a teacher.

Julia Child was also an incredible influence on my TV career. She taught me it was okay to be authentic and not be afraid of your self-expression.

What is your favorite ingredient?

Ginger. I use it in almost everything.

Favorite kitchen gadget?

The most important tool in the kitchen is a really good sharp knife. My favorite are the ceramic ones made by Kyocera, incredibly sharp, and they keep their edge much longer than metal knives.

Speaking of ceramic—what do you prefer: metal, rubber, plastic or ceramic?

The perfect balance of all four.

Favorite cooking method?

What's cooking, because it's the most efficient way to get your food to the table. The eggs are easy.

Favorite click to eat?

SUMMER ESCAPE GUIDE

Pampanga to Tarlac: from 'morcon' to Pinoy Pizza

By Reggie Reyes

WHEN CRISTINE DELICADO Gilbert Trodano is in Tarlac, he prefers dining in his Pinoy-themed eatery. He heads on home afterward, such as his favorite, pin-jacking himself with the old jukebox.

A local aficionado, he went a step further by building himself a home space for his jukebox.

For Gilbert, he goes to his favorite restaurant, along the highway leading to Tarlac.

His favorite dining destination, though, is in Clark—Red Crab Restaurant. It's very close to his home. He also likes to go to the Red Crab Restaurant in Clark.

Red Crab is in Clark, Pampanga. It's in Clark, Pampanga. It's in Clark, Pampanga. It's in Clark, Pampanga.
